

Copyright and Image Use Declaration Form

Images provided by the Army Flying Museum are intended for private and non-commercial use only.

Any planned commercial use of images or multimedia files will require a commercial licence. Only once you have provided details of your planned usage, paid a commercial usage fee in full, and received confirmation, are you lawfully licensed to reproduce our images for commercial use.

Any public use of images or multimedia files need to be agreed with the Museum prior to publication. This includes digital publication on websites or social media. Public usages of Museum images or multimedia files might incur charges and all digital publications need to be watermarked.

Researchers are allowed to take photographs of material themselves and use these for private and non-commercial use only, in the same way as images provided by the Museum. The copyright of these images will belong to the Army Flying Museum.

I hereby declare that I have read this information and will comply with the Army Flying Museum's policy on copyright and image use.

Name (in block capitals):

Date:

Signature:

Please note that your personal information is collected for this service on the legal basis that you have given your consent and it is necessary for the performance of a contract with you.

Last updated: 15.08.2022